My first time crossing the Bhutan/India border by motorcycle: we had come from Darjeeling that day and were unavoidably delayed so that dusk beset us on the long road from Kalimpong. Thick dust engulfed our group as we passed and were passed by manic traffic of all sorts - our anxiety heightened by incessant horns and fading light. We reached the border gate in the dark and on the India side all manner of creature lingered: border guards, beggars, the usual roadside food wallahs, dogs, cows, chickens, gangly truck drivers and their thinly mustached assistant. We brandished our papers to slippery looking Indian officials, stepped through the gate, and...

Tranquility! None of the frenetic behavior just meters away. Calm streets, our smiling guide beckoning us onward..
